To the ancient Celts, Samhain marked the most important of four Celtic fire festivals. Located halfway between an equinox and a solstice, it is one of four cross-quarter festivals. Every year on the first frost after the full moon in October, families allowed their hearth fires to burn out. At this time, they brought back herd animals from grazing and completed gathering the harvest.

After the fires died, they gathered with the rest of their tribe to observe the Druid priests induced friction with a wheel and spindle: the wheel, representing the sun, turned from east to west and lit sparks.

To the ancient Celts, Samhain marked the completion of the harvest and called them to put their energy into preparing for the coming winter. It also betokened a day when their ancestors would come to visit, followed across the veil by all sorts of creatures both good and bad that moved freely in the mortal world on Samhain night.

Samhain is a Gaelic harvest-related festival at the start of wintertime. It is pronounced SOW-in /saʊ. in/ in Irish and usually SAH-win /sa:win/ in English.

October Artwalk
Art, Gratitude and Community

You are invited to join us in a special month of finding connection and wonder through art. We are not holding a reception on the first Friday for the Billings Downtown Art Walk in support and solidarity with our community health and wellbeing. However, this change in routine offers us an opportunity to pause and re-examine what we appreciate about social connections, and how art plays a role in creating these intangible gifts in our lives both singularly and together.

Visit us throughout October and November to browse extraordinary works of art by renowned local artists, in our gallery room and throughout the store. Find your own inspiration; discover or rediscover the what connection and community means to you!

Artists will include Danielle Egnew, Lori Blaylock, Beth Anderson, Todd Kintz, Dani the Bohemian, Karyne Dunbar, Ruhiyyih Tolton, Kitty Kolden, Diane Teske Harris, Melissa Smith, Shelly Young, Cris Pruitt, Nikki Shiva, Mike Cole and more.

Whenever you are creating beauty around you, you are restoring your own soul.
